Leprechauns

We all know this small green fella that causes mischief on Saint Patrick's Day but where did he come from? The idea of Leprechauns come from Irish mythology, the original name for the leprechaun was lobaircin which means small-bodied fellow.

In Irish folklore it's said that the Leprechauns inhabited Ireland before the Celts did. According to Irish folklore leprechauns take form of old men, usually cobblers or shoe makers, that run around and cause mischief. It was said that a Leprechaun when being looked at, but as soon as your gaze is lifted they will disappear. There are many different short stories of Leprechauns in Irish folklore and are usually portrayed as wealthy. Leprechauns become associated with St Patrick's day for no real reason, it is mainly believed to be associated with St. Patrick's day since Leprechauns much like shamrocks are associated with Ireland and so is the holiday.

March

As winter comes to an end
And Spring and its flowers begin
March sit in the middle of their transition
Seeds and branches start sprouting
Tiny buds
The sun starts to say hello
And the clouds start to bid farewell
Cool mornings and warm afternoons
Animals start to wake up
And birds start to fly back
March brings a new green back to the Earth
Leprechauns and Shamrocks
Grass and warm sun
Winter is ending
And Spring has begun
